Noted Health Authority Claims Sulphur Purifies Water in Streams.

The contention of a noted health official in the anthracite coal region of Pennsylvania that sulphur water, allowed to flow into streams, is instead of being a dangerous pollution, a beneficial agent, is creating much comment throughout the mining districts of the country and further investigation will not be made at the instance of several of the large corporations as well as cities whose water supplies contain sulphur from nearby mines.

Dr. Dixon, Superintendent of the State Department of Health at Hazleton, Pa., is authority for the statement that sulphur water from the mines near the city acts as an agent in purifying the water and that it is not dumped by the city into the Susquehanna at that place. He alleges that the mine water destroys the germs in the water and acts as a general agent in the purification of the water in which it is allowed to flow.

MEN'S SUPPER TONIGHT AT PRITCHARD'S HALL

One of the Unique Features in Simultaneous Evangelistic Campaign in Connelville.

One of the unique things in the present simultaneous evangelistic campaign is the supper for men at Pritchard's hall tonight. In other cities where the evangelists have worked it has proven a most happy occasion. Men of all creeds and all walks in life who are interested in the betterment of the community will enjoy this gathering. Frequently Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant sit down together and talk over the things that are of interest to all. Tonight at 6 o'clock such a supper will be held in Pritchard's hall on North Pittsburg street. It is hoped that the men of the community will join together for the moral improvement of the city. There will be short addresses by men from the several walks of life. The meeting will adjourn in time for other engagements of the evening. The tickets are 25 cents and may be had at the hall or by sending any of the ministers of the city. There will be the heartiest welcome and the warmest handshake for all who will come. Those who have not procured tickets will show a courtesy to the committee by letting Mr. Pritchard know that they expect to be at the supper. Phone him before 1:30 if possible.

MORLEY FOR BUDGET BILL

Tells the Lords That New Tax Scheme is Not Revolutionary.

London, Nov. 29.—Viscount Morley of Blackburn, secretary of state for India, better known as John Morley, spoke for the budget in the house of lords.

Lord Morley said the amendment proposed by the Marquis of Lansdowne, which declared in effect that the lords were not justified in giving their assent to the budget until the question has been submitted to the country, involved the transfer of the taxing power and the forcing of penal dissolution. It was one thing that could not be submitted to a plebiscite, declared Lord Morley. It was a budget. The lords could not pronounce on a financial scheme. He ridiculed the idea that the new taxes were revolutionary.

English Financiers Troubled.

London, Nov. 30.—Daron Rothchild, in an interview, declared that the financiers of England are positive in their belief that the budget, if it passes, will undermine both public credit and foreign credit. "It is evident," he said, "that there has been already large efflux of capital. I can say from my own experience that it is very easy to get money for foreign interests, but difficult, if not impossible, to obtain it for even the best English enterprises."

LANDMARK BURNED.

Old Meyers House at Somerset Goes Up in Flames.

SOMERSET, Pa., Nov. 30.—On Sunday morning about 9 o'clock, fire was discovered in the old Meyers house in the West 5th and before the alarm was sent in the flames had gained considerable headway and the entire roof of the building was ablaze. The fire department had considerable difficulty in extinguishing the flames and the building was badly damaged. The loss is estimated at about $2,000.

The flames originated from a defective fire in the kitchen of the building and it is supposed that dust which had collected about the chimney between the floors was ignited by a spark.

A BISMARCK STORY.

Playing the Role of Cousin Was Just to His Liking.

In his university days Bismarck was as jolly and boisterous as the least promising youth of his generation. According to the author of "The M. P. For Russia," he enjoyed dancing and singing better than study and was as full of fun as his chosen companion, Count Keyserling, was devoted to it, and on this difference in temperament hangs a tale.

One day the sky and reserved Keyserling came to Bismarck in great agitation. "What is the matter?" demanded Bismarck.

"My mother writes that an aunt and two cousins are coming for a week to Berlin, and, as they are very young and inexperienced, I must go about everywhere with them, making them all sorts of announcements. It is most annoying," pouted Keyserling, "as I have to prepare myself for examinations and have no time for pretty country cousins."

Bismarck saw his chance and immediately inquired:

"Have you ever seen these young girls? Have they ever seen you?"

"Never in my life."

"Capital! Nothing could be better. Let me be Count Keyserling for the time being, and you become simple Bismarck. You stay at home, and I shall become a first class cousin during all the time of their visit."

Keyserling eagerly accepted the proposition. When the young ladies arrived, Bismarck met them as Keyserling and placed himself at their disposal during their stay in Berlin. Keyserling buried himself in his books and thought no more about it until the girls had gone home to the Baltic provinces.

A week or two later he was disconcerted by receiving a letter from home in which his mother expressed her great delight in hearing from the young ladies and their mother how immensely they had enjoyed themselves and how very agreeable and kind their cousin had been.

"I am overjoyed," continued the fond parent, "to hear from their description that you have grown quite stout and robust during your stay at Berlin."

THE MANN TARIFF AMENDMENTS.

The proposition to open up the Tariff question again will find little favor as a general political and business proposition, but if the present tariff promises to seriously disturb our trade relations with Canada and provoke a war of commercial reprisals Congress will be justified in enacting remedial measures regardless of their effect upon the particular schedules written in the Payne-Aldrich bill by certain New England Senators who served personal and sectional interests with greater zeal than they served the press of the people.

The Republican policy of "Protection to protect American industry," against foreign competition only to the extent that THE MANUFACTUR-ER SHALL HAVE A REASONABLE PROFIT AND THE LABORER A WORTHY WAGE. It was never the intention, and is not now the purpose, of the Protection policy TO CREATE MONOPOLIES, nor to make the CON-SUMER PAY TRIBUTE to those whom our Democratic brethren are fond of calling "Robber Barons"; but only to provide such Protection as will secure FAIR PRICES for the producers of the value and skill. FAIR VALUES for the fruits of the soil and FAIR WAGES for all labor employed therein and therein, in short, THE PROTECTION WHICH SPELLS THE SECURE DEAL AND BRINGS NA-TIONAL PROSPERITY. The Protection which has more than any other agency within the short limit of a century of a century made the United States the richest and most powerful nation of the earth.

While the Republican party has been consistent and steadfast in its advocacy of this policy as against the untempered dictates of Tariff-far-ence-only, horizontal reductions and actual Free Trade, Republican Congresses have never succeeded in enacting a Tariff bill which embodied the Protection policy in absolute perfection. The reason for this was natural. Many men have many minds and the minds of many men are prejudiced in favor of their interests and their friends. Amid the multitude of conflicting views and claims it is always necessary, in the interest of an agreement on anything, to make some compromises; and in making these, the spirit of the Protection policy is sometimes violated. The Democratic party, it may be added, found the same difficulty in framing its Tariff measures during the period mentioned and possibly in anti-bellum days.

So long as these Tariff questions were not serious they have been permitted to remain, because of the improbability of disturbing the Tariff as a whole by opening up the question again; but in the present instance the threatened disruption of our trade relations with Canada is serious enough to warrant any reasonable modification of the Tariff bill which will avert that danger. It has been the special purpose and the central idea of the Republican Tariff to promote national prosperity, not to injure it, and a war of commercial reprisals with Canada would be disastrous to the United States.

TOO MUCH PROHIBITION FOR ALABAMA.

The rejection by the voters of Alabama of the proposed Constitutional Amendment designed to prohibit the manufacture, sale or presence in the State of intoxicants was not strange under the circumstances.

In 1901, the Democratic platform demanded county local option and the Legislature of 1907 passed such a bill.
But this was not satisfactory to the radical temperance reformers, and at a special session they forced through a State-wide prohibition law. The opposition sought to repeal this law. The Prohibitionists then enacted a law designed to prohibit, not only the manufacture and sale of liquor within the State, but also the keeping of liquor in private homes for private use. The State Court declared this law unconstitutional, holding that liquor was a private property and could be stored and sold where and in such quantities as he saw fit provided he did not offer it for sale.

The Constitutional amendment which the Alabama people voted on yesterday was drafted for the purpose of overcoming this decision. "Every man's house is his castle," became the warrior of the opponents of the amendment when it was represented that such a condition would result in the privacy of any man's home being trampled upon at any time a malicious neighbor might enter a complaint.
This thought was too much for the spirit of the citizens.
There is another thought in connection with the election which may be mentioned. The substantial support accorded the Dry movement in Alabama came from the better class of white people, who expected the legislature to make Prohibition for the lower class whites and the negroes, but to affect in no manner their own personal habits in their clubs and homes. When the latter were threatened they changed their attitude and voted against the proposed Constitutional amendment.

THE DANGERS OF STREET OBSTRUCTIONS.

Brownsville is called upon to depend in the Fayette county courts a suit for $25,000 damages filed by a woman who tripped on a sidewalk obstruction and fell sustaining serious injuries.

The fact should give municipal authorities everywhere food for serious thought. Few towns or cities are free from unlawful street obstructions which may bring them to the same uncomfortable plight which Brown-sville finds herself in.

Connellsville is no exception to the rule and the Burgess and Town Council, and all borough officers, should unite in suppressing such dangerous nuisances.

The danger of street obstructions is not confined to pedestrians.

The visiting statesmen find too much red tape at Panama. The canal is managed by a commission. Yet it is proposed to manage some of our large cities and other by commission. Municipal government by commission will be an interesting but an exceedingly doubtful experiment.

Greene county's coke development has actually begun.

The smoke of industry should not be mistaken for imaginary damages. If the smoke were not here the market for many farm products would not be here.

Railroading and mining are hazardous employments.

It is becoming very apparent that the West Penn will not tolerate rowdy-ism in their coaches.

Compensate wants new laws as well as new that for having died some of the old laws seem to want law for everybody but himself.

Armstrong county's Democratic candidate for judicial honors claims his election by a plurality of one vote. His margin couldn't have been much smaller.

Connellsville Miners are disheartened with bear hunting in Center county.
They say the bears were not there this year. Perhaps they have hibernated.
If this is an Irish bill just about it.

The census cross-examinations are somewhat ineffectual at times and one cannot escape the conclusion that the census is a great deal of uninteresting and not practically useless and unchecked and printed occasionally for the junk dealer.

New York custom house revelations indicate that in spite of the Tariff there is some Free Trade in the United States.

Our dogs have been gloomy and disagreeable, but they are preferable to the weather in some other sections of the country.

The pot hunters' dinner has apparently gone to pot.

Street improvements have closed down for the winter. Some industries just naturally freeze up.

Christianity will get down to business at the evangelistic supper this evening.

The proposed gun license law for hunters would hurt some, but it would not always be efficacious. If the gun-tor were a six-foot fellow and the illegal hunter a little runt, and if the former told the latter to get to and hit out, what would happen?

The disappearance of William C.
Lutz, the two-out of three of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, is fully accounted for in his recent books.

Unlabeled is going in for evangelism, too. Mud Island usually sets a clean example for its like neighbor.

The State Zoo Special should come to Fayette county by all means.

The Civic League does not seem to have much standing in the Uniontown courts.

The Navy Department is reported to be about to go on a business basis.
This is quite an innovation, but it will be generally approved when the people see actual business time.

Illness is furnishing the minor disasters just now.

The Secretary of the Interior in his annual report approves the Roosevelt policy of Conservation, but not by Paternalism. He would develop our natural resources by private enterprise under national supervision. The proposition sounds reasonable.

The Jones family propose to be Ohio road kings.

Recruiting for the army and navy is slow work in time of peace, but when the smell of war and of glory is in the air there is no lack of enthusiasm. American patriotism is by no means dead.

The farmer who sets a good straight fence also sets a good example.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

United Press Special.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Are army and navy officers entitled to uniform or traveling expenses while taking the physical test required by regulations either at home or on a bicycle or motor?

Captain Landon Young, who is in charge of the Marine Corps and who is also in the Naval Reserve, is making a study of the question. He has been informed that the regulations are conflicting and that the officers should be respected. But the army-informed that the regulations are conflicting and that the officers should be respected.

Captain Young is one of the best known officers of the navy. When it came time for him to take the test of his physical ability he elected to take the 10-mile race on a bicycle.

miles or ride on a horseback or on a bicycle for a mile or two and then take

The American Commission to Liberia accomplished one thing of importance to this country, at least. Since the distinguished Americans visited the Republic, their has been a great demand for wool-coats of the pattern worn by Emmet J. Scott of Alabama, one of the Commissioners and secretary to Booker T. Washington.

Scott's fancy vest carried a peculiar appeal to his colored brethren in far away Africa and America. Reports state that many vests from America are eagerly sought in Liberia.

Shoes like those worn by Commissioner George Foster of Georgia, can be sold in Liberia for ten times their value in America and the claims that the American Commission to Liberia are regarded as highly as precious stones.

This effort has been to strike an average of the clothes worn by the three and to secure a suit of clothes composed of the most striking articles in each country's wardrobe.

A GUN LICENSE LAW IS PROPOSED

Farmers About Scottdale
Think One Would Remedy
Their Troubles.

HITS IRRESPONSIBLE HUNTERS

In Effect in All But Twelve States of the Union—Foreigners and Boys Under 16 Barred From Carrying Firearms.

SCOTSDALE, Nov. 30.—The George and a number of farmers not members throughout this locality are considering the petitioning of the State Game Commission and the members of the next Legislature for the passage of a gun license law. This is the time of year particularly when the farmers and fruit growers have their attention called with emphasis to the destruction caused by irresponsible hunters. Life and property are another one of them safe during the hunting season. A charge of paint fired through the branches of a row of young trees may so deform them that it will require years of careful pruning and cultivation to bring them to what they otherwise would have been. The farmer out musing corn is in danger of being the target for a carelessly fired ball or load of shot, while his stock is frequently killed and sometimes severely injured. He may desire to preserve game, such as quail, for the benefit that they prove, or he may wish to save the rabbits and squirrels until he may do a little hunting himself.

Fences are broken down gates and huts left open, orchards and fields robbed of their contents and even poultry shot at, but none the less, there is no present or satisfactory remedy for all this. A farmer cannot arrest a trespasser without process of law and to obtain a warrant it is necessary to know the trespasser's name. Fortunately there is proposed a means of relief that seems deserving of the kind owners and as well all reputable and responsible gunners.

The gun license law is one that is of merit to both the farmer and the true sportsman. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has studied how the law works in a number of other States and endorses it. They recommend that the farmer advocate such a law, that will provide that every person carrying a gun must pay a small license fee, of perhaps one dollar, for the privilege of so doing and that when hunting he must carry this license, giving his name and address and shall be obliged to show the license when requested to do so by the landowner, lessee, tenant or employee, connected with the land on which he enters. The proposed law absolutely forbids carrying firearms by unnaturalized foreigners and boys under 16 years of age. It would also provide that no one may enter upon the premises of another without the written permission of the latter. This is a very important point in favor of the landowner.

Such a gun license law is now in successful and satisfactory operation in every State in the Union excepting 12, of which Pennsylvania is conspicuously one. In most of the States the fee is one dollar and residents are allowed to hunt on their own land without a license. This further favors the farmer.

The law of today defines trespass as entering upon the land of another person as "private property." Damage is not necessary as a basis of action for trespass. The landowner does not receive any of the $10 fine if the act is successful. The fine goes to the school fund instead of the Game Commission. "A Broken Idol."

SOFTNESS OF SEALSKIN.

Is Rivalled by Human Hair Where Dandruff is Eradicated.

Sealskin is admired the world over for its softness and glossiness; and yet the human hair is equally as soft and glossy when healthy, and the radical cause of all hair trouble is dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite that saps the vitality of the hair at its root. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that is fatal to the dandruff germ. Without dandruff there is no falling hair, but a luxuriant growth of glossy, soft hair is certain. Scouring the scalp won't cure dandruff. Kill the dandruff germ. Thousands of women owe their beautiful suits of hair to Newbro's Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. for sample.

Old Lady Burns to Death.
New York, Nov. 30.—With the door of her apartment securely locked and serving as a bar against those who tried to save her life, Mrs. Mary Boughey, seventy years old, was burned to death after she had fallen to the floor and the kerosene lamp which she carried had exploded. Other persons living in the house reached her too late after smashing down the door.

LILLEY'S BOOKS IN "CONFUSION."

Apparent Shortage of Presbyterian Treasurer Is Large.

AUDITORS HAVING DIFFICULTY

Pittsburg Presbyterian Trustees Announce That Apparent Defalcations Amount to $21,034—Lilley Accepted Any Religious Treasurerships.

Pittsburg, Nov. 30.—Discovery that William C. Lilley, former treasurer of the Pittsburg presbytery, is short $21,034.31 in his presbytery accounts; that shortages have been discovered in each of the other funds of which he was trustee or treasurer; that the greater portion of the alleged embezzlements were committed within sixty days before his disappearance; and that his books have been in a "confused condition" for years, formed startling features of the report of investigators at a meeting of the board of trustees in the First Presbyterian church.

Disappearance of a mysterious tin box promises to be an interesting development. It was kept by Lilley in a safety deposit box and before its contents had been thoroughly examined by trustees it was taken to Kansas by his brother, Joseph Lilley. It contained papers, tickets and a will.

Ought to Get Lilley's Will. "We ought to have that will, anyway," said a minister grimly. "It might have willed away the First Presbyterian church."

Expert accountants disclosed a remarkable system of bookkeeping by which money could be transferred from one account to another by Lilley. Trustees were shocked by the discovery that all had not been right with the absent treasurer's accounts when an audit was made two years ago. The books were reported to be "confused" and afterward unpaid notes were presented, but no action was taken.

Lilley is said to have been willing to burden himself with all sorts of religious treasurerships. In addition to the presbytery finances Lilley's accounts are apparently short for the temperance committee of the general assembly and the First Presbyterian church, Sunday school. The Mark Watson estate is also said to be a sufferer.

Statement by Dr. Montgomery. Rev. Dr. George T. Montgomery issued a statement for the trustees in part as follows:

"For years William C. Lilley served the Presbyterian church in many capacities, not only within the presbytery of Pittsburg, but throughout the denomination.

"He has been a willing worker as secretary and treasurer of the presbytery and as secretary and treasurer of the joint committee for work among the foreigners, as conducted by the presbytery of Pittsburg and Allegheny prior to their union. In connection with the work he has supervised the location and erection of mission stations and new church buildings, many of which have developed into strong, permanent and self-supporting congregations.

"Unfortunately Mr. Lilley's accounting was not properly systematized nor up to date. In the multitude of the varied transactions much confusion resulted in consequence of his methods. In his absence it is impossible to satisfactorily check his records."

FAILED TO TELL OF DEPOSIT

And Now Bank Refuses to Pay Thomas' Heirs the Money.

Terra Haute, Ind., Nov. 30.—Whether the status of limitations runs against a bank deposit is the question in a suit brought here. Elphus Thomas deposited $4,000 in the First National bank at Queen Castle twenty-five years ago. He did not tell his family about it and when he died none of the family knew that he had it in the bank. He died in 1889.

Fifteen years later his heirs heard the story of the bank deposit. They found no deposit book nor certificate of deposit. R. H. Burkett, administrator of the estate, under a demand for the money and four years ago brought suit, which is the proceedings that after many changes and motions have come to Terra Haute. The bank set up the statute of limitations, which, it is contended, affects a note if no demand is made for the money.

ABSENT TWENTY-FOUR YEARS

Old Lake Captain Surprises His Family by Showing Up.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Henry Deplidge, a captain on the Great Lakes for many years, who for twenty-four years has been separated from his family and believed by his children to be dead, walked into the home of one of his daughters in Chicago last night and today there is a reunion in which four generations are represented.

Captain Deplidge left his home in St. Joseph, Mich., twenty-four years ago for a trip to Buffalo. On his arrival there he was taken ill. After many weeks at a hospital he returned to his ship in the mountains. He was unable to find them here.

SWEEPING CHANGES

Are To Go Into Effect in the Navy at Once.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Heeding the cry for reform in naval affairs Secretary Meyer, after today, will inaugurate the most sweeping changes in the navy department since the establishment of the bureau system in 1902. Himself a director of banks and manufacturing companies in New England in times past, he hopes to put the department on a business basis beyond the dreams of predecessors. The keynote of his reforms is the subordination of the bureau of the past.

Henceforth the officers who man the ships are to have more influence in the navy department. Chosen men from among them are to be the official eyes and ears of the secretary, laden with full responsibility for their reports, but not his hands. The secretary will retain his administrative and executive power and that of the assistant secretary of the navy.

When Mr. Meyer assumed office he found confusion in the department and in the navy yards, due to changes instituted by Secretary Newberry a few weeks before the close of his administration. Steps were taken to ascertain how far it was desirable to follow the reforms outlined by Secretary Newberry. They were followed in some respects.

ONLY SMALL SIZED RIOT

Says Zelaya's Representative on Revolution in Nicaragua.

New York, Nov. 30.—Dr. Victor Roman, a Nicaraguan diplomat and intimate friend of President Zelaya, arrived by the Bahama railroad steamship Advance from the canal zone. He went to Washington today to join the Nicaraguan legation, presumably to promote the interests of Zelaya with the American government.

Dr. Roman said the report published here that there was a great revolution on in Nicaragua was all bosh. "The trouble," he said, "would be called little more than a riot in this country. The only place of importance in the control of the insurgents is Bluefields. The blockade of Greytown is unimportant. General Toledo, in charge of the government forces there when I left, had control of the island waterways, where the essential navigation is carried on. Any blockade from without does not count much as the business shut off is of little consequence."

Fall Five Stories in Elevator. Utica, N. Y., Nov. 30.—As the result of the collapse of an elevator in a clothing manufacturing establishment Harold Prior, aged twenty-one, is dead, Edward Mahu, aged twenty, probably fatally injured, and Edward McQuade, aged eighteen, less seriously hurt. The elevator plunged five stories to the basement.

REFERENCE TO SUGAR FRAUDS

Will Be Included in Taft's Message to Congress.

WORDS WILL NOT BE MINCED

Government Officials, It Is Said, Have Discovered That Stock in Sugar Trust Has Mysteriously Changed Hands Recently.

Washington, Nov. 30.—It is President Taft's present intention to devote a chapter in his message to congress next week to the sugar frauds and his purpose is to use plain and vigorous language in characterizing the men "higher up," who either plotted or connived at the swindling of the government out of millions of dollars of customs duties.

President Roosevelt's reference to rich traders was no more exorbitant than Mr. Taft's comments upon the actions of the high officials of the sugar trust are expected to be.

The information in the president's hands came, it is said, from the department of justice. Taft, it is said, has found enough evidence through the department of justice and the regular channels to make him believe that the sugar trust was about as rotten as anything that ever came to light in the United States. Therefore, he is willing, it was said, to permit that department to go on with its work.

Investigation on the part of the government is said to have developed the startling fact that the man who now manages the affairs of the sugar trust own but a comparatively small percentage of its stock.

Just how and when this change was brought about will be one of the most interesting disclosures that would come from a congressional investigation.

Disclosures Would Be Interesting. Curiously enough it appears to be the careful New Englander who has acquired the sugar stock which men close to headquarters must have unloaded. It developed that 80 per cent of the stock of the trust is owned in New England and there has been something of a panic among representatives and senators from that section at the prospect of what follows. Practically one half of the trust stock, it is claimed, is held by trustees for widows and the legacies of estates. There develops out of this a situation which makes the president more ready to speak his mind upon the operations of the sugar trust. He is suspicious of the situation under which it is found that the men in control of the combine hold so small a percentage of its stock and the distribution of it, which appears to have occurred during a relatively short time.

Something of the power and vigor of expression which hides behind the president's smile is likely to make itself felt, when he says what he has in mind of the operations of those officers of the trust.

GIRL'S EYE TATTOOED

Unusual Operation Successfully Performed on Jewish Girl.

Philadelphia, Nov. 30.—An operation never performed before in this city and only performed a few times by the greatest eye specialists in the world was successfully completed in a clinic at the Medico-Chirurgical College of Pharmacy by Dr. L. Webster Fox.

By the use of six needles, India ink and a vegetable dye the doctor succeeded in tattooing the perfect semblance of an eye on the blind eyeball of a young Jewish girl, which was covered with an ugly white bluish. The operation, Dr. Fox told his class, can never become a common one, as it is seldom that the eyeball of a blind person is in condition to permit of tattooing work.

MAD RUSH FOR EXITS

200 Miners in Illinois Shaft When Gas Explodes—One Killed.

Marion, Ill., Nov. 30.—One man was killed and two scores of miners were overcome by blackdamp following a gas explosion in a coal mine at Johnson City. The dead man is Max Martin. All the others were rescued and revived.

Over 200 men were in the mine when the gas blast came. There was a rush for the shaft and as the cage had not been damaged all the workmen were soon brought to the surface. Nearly a score of men, however, minded of the disaster at Cherry, were too terrified to await the usual means of exit and climbed through the ventilating shaft.

Strength Could Endure No Longer.

Findlay, O., Nov. 30.—Mrs. Samuel C. Moore, wife of a former postmaster of Findlay, after six weeks of devoted nursing of her husband, fell dead at his bedside, having totally exhausted her vitality in caring for him. This was the direct and only cause of her death, the physicians say.

Twenty Japanese Killed in Wreck. Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 30.—Twenty Japanese were killed and fifteen injured in the wreck of a work train on the Great Northern railway between Vancouver and New Westminster.

THE DRYS LOSE.

Amendment to Alabama Constitution Defeated by Big Majority. Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 30.—The people of Alabama declined to amend the constitution so as to include prohibition therein by about 20,000 majority.

Only six or seven of the sixty-seven counties of Alabama returned majorities in favor of the amendment and in each instance the majority was small.

There was intense interest in the election. Women worked around the polls in the large cities serving coffee to the watchers and workers as well as sandwiches. Police and deputies maintained order.

The clear weather brought out a big vote throughout the state. The election is taken as a rebuke to the present state administration, which worked hard for the amendment.

WEDS BESIDE FATHER'S BIER

Chicago Woman Becomes Bride Standing by Corpse of Automobile Victim.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Standing by the coffin containing the body of her father, James Howard, formerly secretary of the Washington Park club, and one of the best known horsemen of the country, Miss Juanita C. Howard was married to Irving Herriott, an attorney.

The last wish of Mr. Howard, who was fatally injured by an automobile last week, was that his daughter should be married in his presence. Before the license could be obtained Mr. Howard, who was known as the "father of the American derby," had become unconscious. He died in that condition.

Chapter 7

ABOUT a dozen of the crew appeared in the evening to go with Orde. They set out the long benches of water street, their steel cables biting deep into the cleft board walks.

For nearly a mile the street was flanked by lumber yards, small mills and factories. Then came a strip of unimproved land, followed immediately by the wooden, ramshackle structures of Hill's Half Mile.

As yet the season was too early for much joy along Hill's Half Mile. Orde's little crew and the forty or fifty men of the drive that had preceded him constituted the tank and the fire at that moment in town. A little later, when all the drives on the river should be in and those of its tributaries and the men still lingering at the woods camps, at least 600 woods weary men would be turned loose.

Then Hill's Half Mile would awaken in earnest from its hibernation. The lights would blaze from day to day. From its open windows would blaze the music, the cries of men and women, the shuffle of feet, the noise of fighting, the shrieks of wild laughter, curses deep and frank and unabashed, songs broken and interrupted. Crows of men, arms locked, would surge up and down the narrow sidewalks, their little felt hats cocked one side, their heads back, their fearless eyes challenging the devil and all his works—and getting the challenge accepted. Girls would fill across the sidewalks like swans before fumes or stand in the doorways halting the men jovially by name.

Tonight, however, the street was comparatively quiet. The serious work of modified illumination. The barkeepers were listlessly wiping the bars. The "pretty waiter girls" gossiping with each other and yawning behind their hands.

In the middle of the third block Orde wheeled sharply to the left down a dark and dangerous looking alley. Another turn to the right brought him into a very narrow street where stood a three story wooden structure into which led a high arched entrance. This was McNell's.

A figure detached itself from the shadow. Orde uttered an exclamation.

"You here, Newmark?" he cried.

"Yes," replied that young man. "I want to see this through."

"With those clothes?" murmured Orde. "It's a wonder some of these things haven't held you up long ago. It's dangerous. You're likely to get snatched."

"I can stand it if you can," returned Newmark.

McNell's lower story was given over entirely to drinking. The second floor was a theater and the third a dance hall. Beneath the building were still viler depths. From this basement the rivermen and the shanty boys generally gravitated, gamblers and parasites unconscious to the street. Now, your lumberjack did not customarily arrive at this stage without lively dollops on count; therefore McNell's maintained a force of fighters. They were butty, sudden men, but strong in their experience and their discipline. To be sure, they might not last quite as long as their antagonists could, but they always lasted plenty long enough. Sand bags and brass knuckles helped some and team work flushed the job.

Orde and his men entered the lower hall as though snuffing in without definite aim. The river boss wandered about with the rest, a wide, good natured smile on his face.

Presently he found himself at the table of the three card monte men. The rest of his party gravitated in his direction.

"Do you think you could pick out the jack when I throw them out like this?" asked the dealer.

"Sure," said that one.

"Well," exclaimed the gambler, "danced if you didn't! I bet you $5 you can't do it again."

Again Orde was permitted to pick up the jack.

"You've got the best eye that's been in this place since I got here," exclaimed the dealer. "Here, Dennis," said he to his partner. "You try him."

Dennis obligingly took the cards and laid by the time the men, augmented by the others, had drawn a crowd.

Dennis obligingly took the cards and laid by the time the men, augmented by the others, had drawn a crowd.

Whether it was that the gamblers sensed the fact that Orde might be led to plunge or whether they were using him to draw the crowd into their game it would be difficult to say, but twice more they permitted him to win.

Newmark plucked his sleeve. "You're $20 ahead," he muttered. "Quit it."

"What flint do you put on this game anyway?" asked Orde.

"How much do you want to bet?"

"Would you stand for $500?" asked Orde.

The gambler pretended to deliberate, his cool, shifty eyes running over the group before him. A small door immediately behind him swung slowly ajar at that moment.

"Got the money?" he asked.

"Have you?" countered Orde.

"The money?" "I'll go you, bub," said he. "Lay out your money."

Orde counted out nine fifty-dollar bills and five tens.

"All right," said the gambler, taking up the cards.

"Hold on!" cried Orde. "Where's your money?"

"Oh, that's all right," the gambler reassured him. "I'm with the house. McNell's credit is good."

"I'm putting up my good money, and I expect to see good money put up in return," said Orde.

Finally the gamblers yielded and put up the money.

The audience now consisted of the dozen of Orde's friends, nearly twice as many rivermen, club hangers-on of the joint, probably gamblers and "housekeepers" half a dozen professional gamblers and several waitresses. The four waitresses still held their positions. The rivermen were scattered back of Orde, although Orde's own friends had gathered at his shoulder. The waitresses and gamblers had divided and flanked the table at either side. Newmark, a growing wonder and disgust creeping into his usually unresponsive face, recognized the strategic advantage of this arrangement.

A determined push would separate the rivermen from the gamblers long enough for the latter to disappear through the small door at the back.

A gasp of anticipation went up as McNell's gambler made his pass. Orde plucked his great red fist on one of the cards.

"That's the jack!" he cried.

"Oh, is it?" sneered the dealer.

"Well, turn it over and let's see."

"No!" roared Orde. "You turn over the other two!"

A low oath broke from the gambler, and his face contorted in a spasm. For a moment the attention was tense and threatening. The dealer, with a swiftness of hand, again revealed the faces of those before him. In that moment probably he made up his mind that an open scandal must be avoided. Force and broken bones even murder might be at light enough under color of right. If Orde had turned up for a jack the card on which he now held his bet and then had attempted to prove cheating a city of robbers and a lively light would have given opportunity for making way with the stakes. But McNell's could not afford to be shown up before thirty interested rivermen as running an open and shut brass game.

"That isn't the way this game is played," said the gambler. "Show up your jack."

"That's the way I play it," replied Orde sternly. "Those confounded boys bet the bet." He reached over and deliberately flipped over the other two cards.

"You see, neither of these is the jack. This must be."

"You win," assented the gambler after a pause.

Orde, his bet still on the third card, began posturing the stakes with the other hand. The gambler reached across the table.

"Give me the other card," said he.

Orde plucked it up, laughing. For a moment he seemed to hesitate, holding the bit of parchment manfully outstretched, as though he was going to turn aside this one time. Then quite deliberately he handed the card to the gambler.

"All to the bar," yelled Orde.

Orde poured his drink on the floor and took the glass belonging to the man next him.

"Get them to give you another," said he.

"I'm," said Orde low voiced, "got the crowd together and we'll pull out a thousand dollars on me, and they'll stand me sure if I go alone and let's get out right now."

"Filled?" inquired Newmark.

"Partner stead, filled," replied Orde.

"Now, suppose you tell me what the devil you're drinking at."

"Look here," said Newmark, abruptly changing the subject, "you know that rapid river flanked by shallows, where the logs are always going around?"

"Well, why wouldn't it help to put a string of piers down both sides, with buoys between them to hold the logs in the deeper water?"

"It would," said Orde.

straight, slender. His hair was quite white and worn a little long. His features were finely etched. Grandpa Orde had been a mighty breaker of the wilderness, but his time had passed, and he had fallen upon somewhat straitened ways. Grandpa Orde, on the other hand, was a very small, spry old lady, with a small face a small figure, small hands and feet. She dressed in the then usual cap and black skirt of old ladies. Half her time she spent at her housekeeping, which she loved, flitting about from cellar to attic storeroom, seeing that Amanda, the maid, had everything in order.

To these people Orde came direct from the greatness of the wilderness and the ferocity of Hill's Half Mile. Such contrasts were possible even ten or fifteen years ago. The upstart country boy at the doors of the most modern civilization.

Newmark, reappearing one Sunday afternoon at the end of the two weeks, was apparently bothered. He examined the Orde place for some moments; walked on beyond it. Finding nothing there, he returned and after some hesitation turned in up the far sidewalk and pulled at the old fashioned wire bell pull. Grandpa Orde herself answered the door.

Newmark took off his gray felt hat. "Will you kindly tell me where Mr. Orde lives?"

"This is Mr. Orde's," replied the little old lady.

"Harden me," persisted Newmark. "I am looking for Mr. Jack Orde. I am sorry to have troubled you."

"Mr. Jack Orde lives here," returned Grandpa Orde. "He is my son. Would you like to see him?"

"If you please," assented Newmark gravely, his thin, shrewd face masking itself with its usual expression of quizzical cynicism.

Newmark entered the cool, dusky interior and was shown to the left into a dim, long room. He peered on a mahogany chair and had time to notice a bookcase with a white owl atop, an old piano with the yellowing keys, half-clothed sofa and chairs, steel engravings and two oil portraits when Orde appeared.

Newmark had known Orde only as riverman. Like most customers, he was unable to imagine a man in rough clothes as being anything but a rough man. The figure he saw before him was correctly dressed in what was then the proper Sunday costume.

"Oh, it's you, Mr. Newmark!" cried Orde. "I'm glad to see you." He led the way into the hall and to another, brighter room, in which Grandpa Orde sat, a canny stinger above her head.

"Mother," said Orde, "this is Mr. Newmark, who was with us on the drive this spring."

"Mr. Newmark and I spoke at the door," said she, extending her frail hand with dignity. If you were on the drive, Mr. Newmark, you must have been one of the high priories in this den of thieves we all read about."

Newmark laughed. At Orde's suggestion the two passed back into the remembrance of the old orchard.

"Where have you been for the last couple of weeks?" asked Orde.

"I caught Johnson's drive and went on down river with him to the lake. I do not like the life at all, but the drive interested me. It interested me so much that I've come back to talk to you about it. I'm going to ask you a few questions about your—"

"Oh, I'm not bashful about my career," laughed Orde.

"How old are you?" inquired Newmark abruptly.

"Thirty."

"How long have you been log driving?"

"About six years."

"Why did you go into it?"

"Because there's nothing ahead of shoveling dirt dirt," Orde replied, with a quiet grin.

"I see," said Newmark after a pause. "Then you think there's more future to that sort of thing than the sort of thing the rest of your friends go in for—law and medicine, groceries and banking and the rest of it?"

"That is for me," replied Orde simply.

"Yet you're merely river driving on a salary of thirty."

Orde flushed slowly and shifted his position.

"I'm not asking all this out of idle curiosity. I've got a scheme in my head that I think may work out big for us both."

"Well," assented Orde reservedly, "in that case—I'm tere on on this drive because my outfit went bankrupt two years ago, and I'm making a fresh go at it."

"Partner stead, filled," replied Orde.

"Now, suppose you tell me what the devil you're drinking at."

"Look here," said Newmark, abruptly changing the subject, "you know that rapid river flanked by shallows, where the logs are always going around?"

"Well, why wouldn't it help to put a string of piers down both sides, with buoys between them to hold the logs in the deeper water?"

"It would," said Orde.

"Why don't it done, then?"

The Scrap Book

His Wife Gave Him What?

Not long ago Satan was hurrying over his rounds in the regions below, and his eye caught a new arrival. It was a man with a proud and haughty air that would have put to shame any king on earth. He strutted about, with his nose high and his chin out and a sort of supercilious style. Satan stopped and watched him, and finally curiously won, and he tapped the fellow on the shoulder.

"See here, who are you, anyway? Any one would think from your style you owned the place."

"I do," said the shade. "My wife gave it to me just before I left home."

At Sat of Sun.

If we sit down at set of sun And count the things that we have done And, counting, find One self denying act, one void That enters the heart of one who hears, One glance most kind That fell like sunshine where it went, Then we may count the day well spent.

Know the Beds.

In the gray light of early morning a traveler in Scotland faced the night clerk resolutely. "You gave me the worst bed in the inn," he began, indignation in his voice and eyes. "If you don't change me before tonight I shall look up other lodgings."

"There is no difference in the beds, sir," the clerk replied respectfully. The traveler smiled ironically.

"If that is so," he said, "perhaps you wouldn't mind giving me the room on the left of mine."

"It is occupied, sir."

"I know it is—by a man who snored all night and was still at ten minutes ago. His bed must be better than mine, or he couldn't sleep at a maximum capacity of sound eight hours on a stretch."

"The beds are all alike, sir. That man has been here before, and he always sleeps on the floor, sir."

Abbreviating a Name.

One member of Congress employs in writing a proprietary system of abbreviation, which might be termed a combination of short and long hand.

Some of his colleagues were one day speaking of his case. For brevity, when one said, "Thank him certainly brought his system to a fine point, but there was a chap in my state recently, who distanced all competitors in this respect. His name was Will Knott, and so keen was his mind for abbreviation that in writing to friends he invariably subscribed himself 'W. N.'"

Waked Him Up.

John Kendrick Hager, the author, once attended a political meeting at which he was the third speaker, following two local spellbinders to whom the crowd listened patiently in anticipation of the "big gun" of the occasion.

The evening was warm, and while the second speaker was holding forth a fat man, occupying a seat directly in front of the stage, yawned to the uncomfortable influences and snored loudly.

"That's one on you," chuckled Mr. Hager, to his fellow speaker, the latter closed his remarks and retired to his seat at the rear of the stage.

"Now watch me wake that up!"

Sure enough, scarcely was Mr. Hager well under way before the fat man opened his eyes, stared wildly for a moment and bailed for the door—Lip-phincts.

Still in Love.

A happily married woman who had enjoyed thirty-three years of wedlock and who was the grandmother of four beautiful little children and an amusing old colored woman for a cook.

One day when a box of especially beautiful flowers was left for the address the cook happened to be present, and she said, "Ye husband said you all the pretty flowers you gits, baby?"

"Certainly my husband, mammy," proudly answered the lady.

"Glor!" exclaimed the cook. "He certainly am holdin' out well."

Embarrassing.

When the new minister, a handsome and amiable man made his first pastoral call on the Fombleks he took little Anna into his arms and tried to kiss her, and the child refused to be kissed.

She struggled loose and ran out into the next room, where her mother was putting a few finishing touches to her adornment before going into the parlor to greet the clergyman.

"Mamma," the little girl whispered to the man in the parlor, "I want you to kiss me."

"Well," replied mamma, "why didn't you let him? I would if I were you."

Thereupon Anna ran back into the parlor, and the minister asked:

"Well, little lady, won't you kiss me now?"

"No; I won't," replied Anna promptly, "but mamma says she will."

Make Earth Its Best.

Do not make heaven attractive merely by depriving earth—cheap expedient. Make earth its richest and best, and then be able to make heaven still higher.—Phillips Brooks.

An Oversight.

The Judge-Blanks of Alameda are an old fashioned family, and these never has been any lack of childish pranks in their home these twenty years and more.

"How many of your children," asked the rector on a recent pastoral visit, "have not yet been baptized?"

"Why, let me see," replied Mrs. Blank—"there's Blanche and Robert and Seth and Rebecca and the baby. Dear me, I had no idea there were so many more of our last christening! We'll be on hand next Sunday in full force, and I shall never let so many accumulate again"—Angus.

THEATRICAL NEWS.

Louise Shepard in "A Broken Idol."

Green Room Gossip.

When Miss Adelide Norwood appears next week in "Aida," she will have at least two personal friends in the audience. Both Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Spott are well acquainted with her, while the former was with her in grand opera.

"We took the long air lumps I ever made on this trip," said Mr. Spott. "I joined the company in Cincinnati and from there we went to Chicago for four weeks. Then we went to Denver for a run of 14 weeks. After a week of one night stands we went to Omaha, thence to Minneapolis and St. Paul, and from the last city we travelled to Boston. From Boston we travelled back to Cleveland and then to Cincinnati once more."

Miss Norwood is one of the principal stars in the English opera company which plays here next week.

Some theatrical stars also quickly. That was the case of Leona Watson, the original Adeline Von Hagen in "The Climax." Three years ago Miss Watson was alternating with Miss Jessie Highlands (Mrs. Charles E. Spott) in the leading role in the Hermit Square Opera Company of which Mr. Spott was the manager.

Mrs. Spott, after seeing "The Climax," became convinced that Edward Locke wrote this little masterpiece around her friend of comic opera days. Miss Watson came from a little Ohio town and there was a doctor in the case who kept urging her to leave the stage. Those who saw "The Climax" will recall the story the author wrote about the sweet singer.

Miss Watson sang "Serenade" in "Salt Pasha" and that was the part which brought forth her best notice. In this part she introduced the song "Clair and I." Remembering the success of Miss Watson in the past, and her hard work with that particular song, Mr. Spott immediately secured the music and will introduce it into the performance of "Salt Pasha" to be given by the Connellsville Opera Club here on Christmas. Miss Mildred Miller will sing the part of "Serenade" and Mr. and Mrs. Spott will play Clair and I. It is not the bit of the show they will both be highly mistaken.

Mr. Spott will, for the first time, appear in one of his own home talent productions. After much persuasion on the part of the members of the opera club, he has consented to play his old part as "Rajah." In the past he has felt content to stay behind the scenes directing the amateurs, but his proteges have succeeded in getting him to take his old part.

Good progress is being made with the production. There is spirited rivalry between the boys and girls over who their looks and sing the most from memory. The girls are in the lead just now, confident they will master their parts ahead of the boys. The male members of the company refuse to admit defeat. The company will rehearse this evening in Pritchard's hall.

THE SOISSON.

"A Broken Idol" Tonight.

Among the many features of "A Broken Idol" is the prima donna, Miss Louise Shepard, who is said to be the musical find of the year. Miss Shepard is from Toronto, Canada, and only three years ago professed the theatre, beginning as a member of the chorus in "The Isle of Spices."

It was not long, however, before she was advanced first to small parts, rapidly advancing to the crowd position of prima donna, creating those roles in addition to the one she sings in "A Broken Idol" also found in "A Knight for a Day" and "Three Twins." Miss Shepard in addition to being a fortunate owner of a sweet soprano voice is said to possess a chain of beauty.

Others in the excellent cast of "A Broken Idol" are George Richards, who also is a graduate from the Horty forces and is perhaps best known for his excellent work in "A Temperance Town," David, Melinda, William, John, William, John, Madge, Voo, Clara, Reynolds Smith, Bertie Beaumont, etc.

This big production is full of many startling novelties, one of which is a balloon ascension which carries the prima donna sailing around the theatre over the heads of the audience just as if aerial navigation was a matter of every day occurrence. There is still another novelty which is sure to command attention, an immense dragon, which after disposing itself around the stage, finally evolves itself into a score of beautiful young girls. The big chorus contingent of "A Broken Idol" includes 40 of the most attractive young women in a musical comedy who can sing and dance as well as they look. "A Broken Idol" will be at the Soisson theatre tonight.

Wake Up Your Complexion.

Here's a Beauty Hint That Every Woman Should Consider.

Does your face need waking up? If the crow's feet are coming and the skin looks sallow, wasted or out of condition, it can be quickly restored to its youthful appearance by the use of Crown Cream and the Harlan Beauty Cup.

It is generally known "Crown Cream" stands at the head of the list of skin creams and skin lotions, because it actually gives results that no other toilet cream is able to accomplish. This is because it contains certain ingredients that the average manufacturer considers too costly to employ, and others whose qualities are known only to its makers. Crown Cream is best used in connection with the Harlan Beauty Cup as in that manner every user is at once an expert at face massage. The Beauty Cup does more to restore the skin to its youthful condition and vigor, than is possible by hand manipulation. Wrinkles are easily removed, the skin creases, and then strengthening the skin tissue where it had been loosed. Crown Cream is sold everywhere for 50c a jar, and this is also the price of the Beauty Cup. If your dealer is not supplied, either article will be sent direct by the Harlan Mfg. Co., Toledo, Ohio. The Crown Cream Beauty Book will also be sent free by the Company, upon a postal card request.

DEFIES ARREST WITH BULLETS.

Paroled Prisoner Kills His Mother and Sheriff

COMMITTS SUICIDE AFTERWARD

Farra's Visit to His Home in Ohio Ends in Terrible Tragedy—Had Been Paroled on Condition That He Would Not Return to State.

Greenville, O., Nov. 29.—After killing his mother, Mrs. Isaac Weaver, a deputy sheriff, William H. Farra, and probably fatally wounding Mr. and Mrs. Levi Minnich while taking possession of their home in an effort to hold off a pursuing posse, Clyde Weaver, thirty-four years old, last night committed suicide in the Minnich home.

His body, a bullet hole in the temple, was found under a bed in the Minnich home when police entered after his fire was extinguished. He had used his last cartridge to end a day of carnage in Franklin township, nine miles east of this city.

Weaver, released on parole from the Dayton workhouse on condition that he stay outside Ohio, returned from Illinois last week and on Saturday threatened the lives of the family of James Hupper, a neighbor. Sheriff Hupper and his deputy arrived to arrest Weaver. He asked permission to change his clothes and then, from his upstairs room, defied the sheriff.

Mrs. Weaver, while pleading with the sheriff, was killed by a bullet through the heart, fired at the sheriff. While the sheriff was organizing a posse Farra was felled by a bullet from Weaver's revolver and the latter, stopping to kill Farra with another bullet, fled in the sheriff's buggy.

An auto led the pursuit to the Minnich home, where Weaver crying, "Give me shelter," fired a bullet breaking Mrs. Minnich's arm and entering her chest and another penetrating Minnich's intestines. Both probably will die.

Strickland, himself in the house, Weaver held off the posse till only one shot remained and then killed himself.

STRIKE BETWEEN ACTS

Electricians at Paris Delay Opera Which King Manuel is Witnessing.
Paris, Nov. 29.—Patand, the secretary of the electricians' union of Paris, recalled attention to his existence last evening at the gala performance of Faust given in honor of King Manuel of Portugal.

After the third act the workmen in charge of the electric lights crossed their arms and refused to continue until the opera house managers promised Patand that the pay of the men would be increased. The lights behind the scenes were cut off, but those in the front of the house were allowed to remain burning. As a result of a busy consultation the opera directors complied with the strikers' demands and the performance proceeded without Manuel or the fashionable audience being aware of the nature of the trouble.

VENGEANCE IS SWORN

By the Daniels Against Men Who Killed Their Mother and Sister.
Welch, W. Va., Nov. 29.—While the funeral of Martha Daniels, who was shot and killed by the Christian brothers, who led a posse against their home, was being held here and another passed to the great beyond from a bullet wound inflicted during the shooting, both were shot while defending their brothers and husband against the attack.

The Daniel boys and their father have sworn and have sworn vengeance on the Christian family. The feud promises to eclipse that of the bloody Hatfield-McCoy feud of years ago. The Daniels who attended the funeral were armed with Winchester. The whole town is living in terror.

POURED GASOLINE ON GIRL

Then Jealous Suitor Applied a Match, Causing Her Death.

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 29.—Angered by the refusal of Maria Acosta, a Cuban woman, to allow him to call at her home, Miguel Gomez secured a bucket of gasoline, went to her house with two men, threw the gasoline on her as she stood in her bedroom and when one of his friends put out the lamp he struck a match which he applied to her.

The men then fled. Neighbors heard the woman's screams and put out the flames, but too late to save her life. Gomez is in jail.

New York, Nov. 29.—Control of the Guaranty Trust company, one of the three largest trust companies in New York, was passed into the hands of a syndicate headed by Henry P. The clumsy Cubs tried hard last night to regain second place in the Connellsville Duckpin League but the best they did was tie the Topnotchers. The Cubs were up against the Athletics and rolled better than they knew how against the tallenders.

It has been peculiar this season that practically every record and high score to go up has been made against the Athletics. While not able to win consistently, Captain McClure's outfit is able to make the other three teams do better work. That doesn't help the Athletics but it makes the records fall.

The Athletics started out like champions and threw an awful scare into the Browns. Although the Cubs rolled up a 532 score, the McClureites spilled 557 pins and won handily. That gave the other fellows something to ponder over. It also made them get busy. The Cubs did better by 16 pins in the next game while the Athletics could not keep up the pace. They lost easily. The third game went to the Cubs by eight pins. On the three games the Cubs only had a margin of 26 pins and had to do better than 1,000 to get that.

The century mark was no bar in the games last night. Young had the high score of the evening with 113, while Moore was next with 111. John McSpill 104, Brickman 100, Goldsmith 101, Norton 102 and Young in his second game, did an even 100. Young was going after a record, but the last game put him out of the running. He was the high man with 295, however, Moore was best for the Cubs with 283. No new records were established. The scores:

The best evidence is the bar a quantity of goods we sell, not only to people living at the coke works, but to a large number of people living in towns throughout the coke region and not employees.

Compare our Groceries and Provisions with the opposition's throughout the region. Compare the prices, compare the quality, compare the quantity we handle, and you will easily conclude that we are in a position, as very extensive dealers, to excel all competition. Our prices are lower because we buy in such large quantities. The quality is always good. Perishable goods are not kept in our stores long enough to become the least bit bad. The quantity sold at any one of our stores is as large as any opposition store—then remember we have sixty-three stores.
